About GISI

The Gastrointestinal Infection Society of India (GISI), established in 2007 at PGIMER, Chandigarh, was created to confront the growing challenges of gastrointestinal infections across the country. Formally registered under the Societies Act, the Society began with 14 founding members and institutional backing. Over the years, GISI has grown into a respected national platform focused on advancing research, promoting education, and raising awareness in the field of gastrointestinal health. Its initiatives have significantly contributed to improved clinical practices and greater public understanding of GI infections throughout India.
